MORTENSEN'S BISHOP TALKS OF THE CASE

"This murder has fallen upon Forest Dale like a blighting influence," said Bishop James Jensen of that suburb, yesterday. "We who have known Peter Mortensen for years have hesitated to believe the terrible accusation that has been brought against him, but now we have our doubts. The scere of the Hay murder is gruesome enough under the most favorable circumstances, but with the sky a mass of leaden black clouds, and the atmosphere filled with cutting snow and ice, it, becomes a place of dread. such a dark crime was goon buried with all its shocking evidences of a horrible deed, beneath a carpet of pure white that gave no hint of the dark tragedy the traces of which it obliter-ated. To one trudging over the carpet snow came the thought, "What if this snow had fallen the night of the murder?" The answer is apparent. The traces of the crime would have been obliterated, the lonely grave which held the body of the murdered man would have been hidden from suspicious eyes, and the victim of the attocious crime might yet have been lying under the soil with his good name resting under the shadow of suspected dishonesty.
Had this snow fallen on the fatal night of the 16th, which the murderer possibly counted upon, the crime might never have been known.

TELLS OF CONDUCT OF MRS. MORTENSEN

Numerous stories of the purported conduct of Mrs. Mortensen after learning of the discovery of Hay's murdered body have been told, but her manner of receiving the news and her subsequent demeanor, as seen by a next-door neighbor, was not related until last night. The story was told by Mrs.

I have enjoyed your expression of the true facts as you understand them.

"My dear husband is quite worn out with a long life of concentrated duty."

There is much to favor the growth of commercial ties between Asiatic Turkey and the United States, says Mr. Norton. The American education al effort at Harpoot has had wide spread influence. Contact for nearly balf a century with American teachers, American methods and American family life has led to a high admiration for all that bears the stamp of American make. The region thus is in a particularly recentive most in a particularly receptive mood.

Turkish farmers, he says, await with eagerness to see the working of reapers which have been ordered from America, each of which is expected to perform in a day what eighty men now accomplish with existing facilities. Within fifteen months no less than 332 American sewing machines have been disposed of in Mr. Norton's district and have driven from the mar-kets completely the English and German machines, hitherto in vogue. In even less time seventy American life insurance policies have been issued, with prospects of many more. As to bieycles, the consul says that the one used by him was the pioneer in the Harpoot district, and as a result of the appearance of this wheel, a demand has sprung up for bicycles.

Summing up, Mr. Norton says the conditions which are favorable to the gradual building up of a reliable mar-ket for American goods in the Har-poot district are the increasing dissatisfaction with the cheap products of Germany, Austria and England; the OF THE BUSINESS great confidence in American integrity and in the quality of American wares; The business affairs of Peter Morten-sen are now in the hands of his brother the large emigration from the Harpoot district to America and the fact that no European house or agency has been established there.
